Dr. Peter Langman, Psychologist: is a sought-after expert on the psychology of school shooters and other perpetrators of mass violence. He conducts trainings on understanding the psychology of school shooters and identifying potential school shooters for professionals in mental health, education, and law enforcement. He has spoken on preventing school shootings at the FBI National Academy in Quantico, VA and been hired by Homeland Security to train professionals in school safety. He is also a researcher with the National Threat Assessment Center of the United States Secret Service. In 2018 he was invited by the Department of Homeland Security to participate in the National School Security Roundtable. Though his primary focus is school shooters, he has spoken at FBI Headquarters on white supremacist homegrown violent extremists and on American jihadis at the National Counterterrorism Center.

Ben Cort, Advocate: Ben Cort's passion for recovery, prevention and harm reduction comes from his own struggle with substance abuse. Sober since June 15, 1996, he has been a part of the recovery community in almost every way imaginable. He has a deep understanding of the issues and a personal motivation to see the harmful effects of drug and alcohol abuse minimized. He has received nationwide recognition for an innovative approach to building sober communities around sport and healthy activities with Phoenix Multisport (PM).

Following the passage of Colorado Amendment 64, which outlined a new statewide drug policy for cannabis, Cort was appointed to the Board of Directors of Project SAM (Smart Approaches to Marijuana) as well as NALGAP (the National Association of Lesbian, Gay, and Transgender Treatment Providers and their Allies). Cort's passion about the intersection of recovery and public policy makes him frequent guest in the media. His first book, Weed, Inc.: The Truth About the Pot Lobby, THC, and the Commercial Marijuana Industry, was released in September 2017.

Mo Canady, NASRO Executive Director: Mo Canady holds a Bachelor's degree in Criminal Justice from Jacksonville State University. He is a former Lieutenant with the City of Hoover Police Department in Hoover, Alabama. The last twelve years of his career were spent as the supervisor of the School Services Division. After a 25-year career, he retired from the Hoover Police Department in 2011. He was appointed as an instructor for the National Association of School Resource Officers (NASRO) in 2001 and a NASRO board member in 2005. He is a past President of the Alabama Association of School Resource Officers. Mo now serves as the Executive Director for NASRO. He recently testified on the matter of SRO National Standards before The Federal Commission on School Safety. He has also testified on the matter of school safety before the United States House Committee on Education and the Workforce. He is a co-author of the national report; "To Protect and Educate – The School Resource Officer and the Prevention of Violence in Schools."

Michelle Monzo, Crisis Intervention Specialist: Since 2002, Michelle has served as the Crisis Intervention Specialist (CIS) law enforcement/criminal justice personnel instructor at Montgomery County Emergency Service (MCES). CIS is taught as a basic and advanced class and is designed to give police officers and other first responders insight, education, and experience in crisis intervention, and psychiatric emergency response. The goals of the course is to maximize safe outcomes for mental health consumers and law enforcement officers, to increase officers' knowledge about mental illness, to de-stigmatize mental illness within the law enforcement community, and to assist officers in learning practical skills they can use daily during their interactions with individuals with mental illness. The philosophy of CIS is that every officer should be trained in crisis intervention and should be appropriately educated about mental illness, its symptoms, manifestations, impact, prevalence and the myths surrounding those who are affected. It is through practical education, training, and exposure that police officers will become more aware, empathetic, and skilled at interacting with this population.

Clyde Parry, Chief of Police Coral Springs (FL): Clyde Parry has served 31 years with the City of Coral Springs Police Department, working his way up the ranks from Patrol Officer to Deputy Chief. Chief Parry began his career with the Coral Springs Police Department in 1987. He served as a patrol officer until 1989, at which time he was transferred to the Vice, Intelligence and Narcotics Unit. During his tenure with the VIN Unit, he was assigned to the Fort Lauderdale District Office of the Drug Enforcement Administration, serving as a Task Force Officer from 1997 until 2006. In late 2006, he was promoted to the rank of sergeant serving in the Patrol Unit and then the Vice, Intelligence & Narcotics Unit. He was promoted to Lieutenant in 2010 where he supervised patrol (Platoon One Bravo.) Then in May 2010, he was promoted to captain of the Patrol Component. On April 21, 2012, he was promoted to Deputy Chief of the Operations Division.

Chief Parry was “Officer of the Year” in 2002 and “Supervisor of the Year” in 2007. He received The Outstanding Law Enforcement Officer Award from the United States Attorney’s Office in 2010, an Exceptional Police Initiative Commendation in 1999, a Unit Citation in 1999, a Team Citation Award in 2009, and has received numerous letters of commendation from both the public and other law enforcement agencies throughout his career. Chief Parry holds a Bachelor of Science Degree in Criminal Justice from Columbia Southern University. He is a graduate of the Police Executive Research Forum’s Senior Management Institute for Police, the Law Enforcement Executive Development Academy’s (LEEDA) Command Institution for Law Enforcement Executives, and the prestigious FBI National Academy.

Maggie Sweeney, Forensic Child interview Specialist: Maggie Sweeney is a Child and Adolescent Forensic Interviewer (CAFI) for the FBI. She joined the Bureau in 2020. In her role as a CAFI for the FBI, she serves as a subject matter expert in forensic interviewing and child abuse for the Bureau. She conducts forensic interviews following the FBI’s protocol for presenting evidence on cases involving juvenile and sometimes adult victims of CSEC and trafficking cases. She assists agents in preparing for interviews to make them as successful as possible, ensuring a victim-centered approach. She has received extensive training in child abuse, interviewing techniques, facilitation training and utilizing a trauma-informed approach over the past 10 years of her career in forensic interviewing. Prior to her position as a CAFI with the FBI, Maggie was the Program Manager and Forensic Interviewer at Mission Kids Child Advocacy Center of Montgomery County, PA. In this role, Maggie worked as part of a multi-disciplinary team, using the team approach to child abuse investigations within Montgomery County. Maggie has conducted over 1,800 forensic interviews.

Maggie has participated in a number of panel discussions at various conferences involving child abuse, forensic interviewing and the Child Advocacy Center model, as well as conducted various training sessions throughout her tenure.

Prior to working at the Child Advocacy Center, she worked in the child welfare field, at the Department of Human Services in Philadelphia and the Office of Children and Youth in Montgomery County. In this role, Maggie investigated allegations of child abuse and neglect as a Caseworker and Supervisor of an investigative unit.

Maggie received her Undergraduate Degree in Social Work from West Chester University and her Master's Degree in Social Work from Widener University and is a Licensed Social Worker in the State of Pennsylvania.
